

NIKKO AM GLOBAL SHARES HEDGED STRATEGY

Assets are held in the Nikko AM NZ Wholesale Global Shares Hedged Fund. The Nikko AM Global Shares Hedged Fund (retail) invest in units in the wholesale fund, which the commentary refers to.

Market Overview

- Global equity markets suffered another miserable quarter as investors lost just short of 7% in US dollar terms, confirming that we are indeed in the midst of a bear market. The worst performing sectors this quarter were some of the market leaders of the last cycle. Information Technology and Communication Services meaningfully underperformed, as investors weighed cooling revenue growth and higher discount rates. We believe this has further to go. Interest rate sensitive sectors, the Energy and Consumer Discretionary sectors, outperformed during the quarter, perhaps indicating a level of investor fatigue when it comes to selling consumer facing companies and hinting that investors might start positioning for the next bull market.

Fund Highlights

- The fund returned a negative 10.12%, 157 basis points behind the benchmark for the quarter.
- Positive contributors to fund performance over the month Palomar, Carlisle Companies and Deer & Company. Main detractors included Sony Corporation, AIA Group and TransUnion. SolarEdge Technologies, Inc. underperformed this month after a quarterly results announcement in which margins disappointed meaningfully.

Market Commentary

Global equity markets suffered another miserable quarter as investors lost just short of 7% in US Dollar terms, confirming that we are indeed in the midst of a bear market. The hopes of a pivot towards less hawkish monetary policy from the Federal Reserve continued to fade away, as inflation once again surprised to the upside in the US and interest rate expectations moved higher. The never-ending US inflation / Fed funds rate debate rages on, with risk assets starting the quarter with optimism but reaching a nadir towards the end of September, as it becomes increasingly obvious that the Fed will remain hawkish for the foreseeable future. To add insult to injury, global economic data has continued to drift slowly lower, stoking fears over a 2023 recession. Russian escalation of the conflict in Ukraine, after a series of embarrassing setbacks for the country’s military, also served to unnerve investors. Also notable was the UK Government’s ham-fisted attempt to kickstart economic growth in the country – which necessitated an emergency intervention by the Bank of England to stem surging debt servicing costs and a collapse in Sterling. The depreciation of the UK Pound threatened even worse imported inflation. The worst performing sectors this quarter were some of the market leaders of the last cycle. Information Technology and Communication Services meaningfully underperformed, as investors weighed cooling revenue growth and higher discount rates. We believe this has further to go. Interest rate sensitive sectors, the Energy and Consumer Discretionary sectors, outperformed during the quarter, perhaps indicating a level of investor fatigue when it comes to selling consumer facing companies and hinting that investors might start positioning for the next bull market.

Fund Commentary

The fund returned a negative 10.12%, 157 basis points behind the benchmark for the quarter. Positive contributors to fund performance over the month Palomar, Carlisle Companies and Deer & Company. Main detractors included Sony Corporation, AIA Group and TransUnion. SolarEdge Technologies, Inc. underperformed this month after a quarterly results announcement in which margins disappointed meaningfully. Palomar Holdings outperformed significantly in the recent quarter as the share price rose over 30%. Much of this was triggered by another very strong quarterly earnings report that has given investors far more conviction in management’s ability to execute. Carlisle Companies shares rose following strong quarterly results. Earnings came in above expectations due to a strong operating performance. Importantly, demand remains robust in Construction Materials and management commented that orders are now booking out into 2023. Deere & Company shares recovered from their over-sold condition caused by the roll over in soft commodities. The shares performed well ahead of quarterly results in August, which confirmed full year 2022 guidance. Furthermore, the slight easing of supply chain issues is helping the company to fulfil demand. Sony Corporation struggled to perform as investor concerns grew around future growth prospects. The company is expected to see ongoing earnings pressure from a strong dollar and the market is wary of weaker prospects for consumer discretionary spending in the context of a looming recession. AIA Group has underperformed during the quarter as ongoing China lockdowns are significantly disrupting business in key markets, and a slower business recovery in ASEAN countries despite large, local re-openings. As the pace of recovery picks up later in the year, we should see an improvement in new business value. TransUnion continued to underperform in September partly due to the industry’s unfavourable style skew in the current market environment.
