Market Commentary (quarterly)

The last three months of the year saw strong returns amid growing excitement that central banks will cut interest rates sooner in 2024 than previously expected, resulting in what is commonly referred to as a Santa Rally. The quarter started with the horrific attack by Hamas on Israel and the realization that tensions in the Middle East would escalate and likely remain raised for some time. Shortly after the Hamas attack, US 10-year Treasury Bills hit 5%, a level not seen since 2007. Despite these headwinds, markets turned positively in November as expected inflation levels peaked and markets started to anticipate global central banks reducing rates in early 2024. Investors returned to their 'declining yields' playbook and not surprisingly markets strengthened, led by the 'Magnificent 7' – which on one day in November collectively gained more than USD 200 billion. The feel-good factor was then rubber stamped in December, with the conclusion of the Fed OPC meeting, suggesting rates have in fact peaked. The MSCI AC World Index delivered marginally above 11% (over the quarter, in USD terms), which led most asset classes with commodities, in particular Energy based commodities, lagging far behind. Leading regions included Europe ex UK, which exceeded the S&P500, largely due to its composition and in particular the continued price appreciation of its largest constituent, Novo Nordisk. Other regions to fare well included Australia and Latin America, both benefiting from a depreciating US dollar. The worst regions included Hong Kong, Singapore & Asia as the ripple effect from China's weak post COVID-19 recovery continues to dampen investor enthusiasm about a much hoped for, but long time coming, cyclical bounce. The UK equity market also lagged due to a combination of higher exposure to underperforming energy and material stocks and British pound sterling strength. The best performing sector this quarter was unsurprisingly IT, rising more than 11%, closely followed by Real Estate, which recovered somewhat from a poor year's performance in the face of rising rates. Both Industrials & Financials also outperformed, albeit only marginally. The worst performing sector by far was Energy, which retraced prior month's gains on the back of falling crude and natural gas prices. This was particularly surprising given the escalation in Middle East hostilities.

Fund Commentary (quarterly)

Contributors: Hexagon AB Class B continued to outperform this quarter following its capital markets day, in which it became clear that the company's medium-term guidance is conservative, paving the way for potential upgrades in 2024. Management delivered a clear view on the growth strategy, introduced new reporting divisions and has plans to increase communication with the market. Netflix Inc.'s third quarter results and management's outlook were ahead of expectations amid stronger subscription gains and accelerating revenue growth. Cash generation remains strong with management now expecting USD 6.5 billion of FCF in 2023 (USD 5 billion+ prior) and lower spend on content - mid USD 13 billion (USD 15 billion prior). Microsoft Corporation shares climbed following better-than-expected quarterly results, delivering strong performance in both Cloud and Professional businesses. Management is confident about the outlook on earnings and demand for AI infrastructure is already proving to be a growth tailwind.

Detractors: Rentokil Intial PLC's third quarter trading update highlighted disappointing trading with their North American business. Organic growth was only slightly below expectations; however, they have recently acquired a large US competitor, Terminix, and investors are concerned about the integration of this asset. Schlumberger N.V. underperformed over the quarter despite strong quarterly results in October. The oil price has drifted lower as the conflict in Palestine has not escalated as feared and OPEC has struggled to agree on any additional production cuts. ChampionX Corporation shares underperformed over the quarter, following underwhelming quarterly results in October. However, we are encouraged to see that the Offshore and International businesses, which are central to the long-term investment thesis, remain intact.
